

A personal message from Dr Aneeta Hussain

After 40 years as a doctor, and almost 25 of those as a GP at The Red Practice, the time has come for me to retire from clinical practice.

It has been an enormous privilege to care for the community in Walton-on-Thames. I have had the honour of supporting patients and families through moments of joy, challenges, uncertainty, and healing. Many of you I have known for years, and it has been deeply meaningful to share in your stories and to witness the strength, resilience, and kindness that define this community.

Medicine has changed enormously since I first qualified, but what has never changed is the trust you place in your GP. I have always held that trust with the utmost respect. Thank you for allowing me into your lives, for your warmth and your patience. Every consultation, every conversation, and every shared milestone has shaped my journey and enriched my career. Your kindness, loyalty and the relationships we have built together have meant so much to me

I have also had the pleasure of working alongside many fantastic colleagues during my time at the practice, and I would like to thank the entire Red Practice team, past and present, for their dedication, friendship and support.

Although I will miss the daily contact with patients and colleagues, I leave knowing that The Red Practice is in excellent hands with Dr Kalum De Silva and his two new Partners, supported by a wonderful team who remain deeply committed to providing the highest standard of care for our community. I look forward to watching from afar and seeing the practice's continued growth and success under Kalum's leadership in the years ahead.

One of the greatest lessons I have learned throughout my career in general practice is that medicine is not only about diagnosing and treating illness, but about listening, understanding and caring for people as individuals. The relationships we build with our patients are what truly make this profession so special.

As I step into retirement, I do so with immense gratitude and pride. I will miss the daily interactions and the sense of purpose that comes from serving as your doctor, but I look forward to new chapters ahead.

Thank you for allowing me to be part of your lives for so many years. I wish you all the very best for the future.

With my warmest wishes,
Dr Aneeta Hussain
